

Christmas and Hogmanay have flown past it's a shame that the weather didn't really help any fowlers that were out there, the windless days and mild temperatures made for tough going most ducks were remaining inland at un-shootable heights when flying over our estuaries. Having said that the condition they are in along with the geese means some fine dining when you do get lucky.

Here's a simple recipe that works every time, enjoy

Good luck for the remaining and sometimes best days of the season, and all the best for 2019. Please send in your bag returns when the season ends

Also duck and goose wing survey via BASC, more info on that next month or cast your eyes over BASC website to find out how to participate
