

During the Late spring and summer months there's always plenty to be getting on with. For those with young dogs the lighter nights help massively and will bring many interesting times, usually attempting to outwit one another! Back at home the garden will require loads of attention to keep it in shape you might even plan a few projects to change things around a wee bit. Holidays here and abroad will be one of the main events for most families given that we've not been allowed because of the covid situation.

Other pursuits just have to be slotted in whenever you can get some free time. Top of the list I suspect may well be chasing after an elusive Spring Salmon. Year by year there is no doubt these amazing fish are proving much more difficult to slip into the landing net, it's a lucky man indeed who succeeds on this mission. These early visitors that come in from approximately January till May are really something special. Not all however are in pristine condition as they have to run past an army of waiting seals in our river estuary's quite a number are heavily marked and showing severe injuries, not like the specimen in our attached photograph.

Pursuit number 2 would have to be our old friend the pigeon with many fields now drilled and seeds/shoots a plenty this bird is never one to miss an opportunity, breakfast starts early for them so it's usually a long day and take plenty of cartridges nothing worse than running out!! Enjoy.
