

It's that time of year when Wildfowlers should be investigating areas never tried before. Such places could well produce a bird or two. These spots can be close to your usual haunts you may even have seen the odd team of ducks flighting over them unshot during the season past.

Remaining hidden on an estuary isn't easy sometimes impossible especially on mud flats, however even on completely flat patches if you can lay down and keep motionless at the crucial time, success will come your way.

If taking your four legged best buddy out with you it's imperative that he or she also takes up the same motionless shape as yourself. If this can't be achieved then forget it as no respectable quarry will come within shooting distance honest! Best left at home for another mission.

This weekend is the Scottish Game Fair and will include all sorts of goodies for like-minded people also some good Scottish weather. Fishing and shooting arts and crafts, great food oh! And not forgetting our National Gundog Team who will be competing in the 4 Nations competition, Best of luck guys.

Unfortunately TVWA as a club didn't muster a team for the BASC Interclub shoot nor did any Individuals take part as far as I know. I guess most members weren't to keen to take part in competitive clays seeing as they only fire a few shells at the best of times, maybe next year.

The WAGBI/BASC Challenge Cup that we held was returned to Trochry and should now be with its new owners.

That's all for now, If you're at the Game Fair enjoy.
